PLAN FOR A NEW COLONY

Anti Bahists Favor Establishing One at Greenacre

Two rival colonies, each purporting to carry out the ideals of Sarah J. Farmer, founder of the Green Acre movement, will be established side by side in Eliot as the result of discussions which developed yesterday among the Bahai and anti-Bahai factions. If plans formulated are carried out.

As a consequence of the secession of the anti element, the Bahai adherents are now in control of the original colony, and the anti-Bahai is a minority. The anti-Bahai, however, are not disposed to take their defeat calmly.

MAN OF 70 MARRIES GIRL OF 22

C. H. Parslow Goes to Cohasset to Wed Young Bride.

Miss Georgianna Shattuck, a maiden not quite 22 years of age, on Tuesday became the bride of Cornelius H. Parslow, aged 70. The ceremony occurred in Cohasset, Mass., at the rectory of the St. Paul's Episcopal church and was performed by Rev. Howard K. Bartow, the rector of that house of worship. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Delmore of Cohasset and came to this city immediately following the ceremony. The groom is engaged in the business of painting and paper hanging and has for several years filled the place of sexton at the St. John's church. The couple filed a marriage intention in this city on July 16, but later decided to marry in Massachusetts and filed the second intention at Cohasset. They will reside at 101 Chapel street.

JAMES CURRAN FATALY HURT AT YORK HARBOR

Pinned to a Tree by Automobile Driver by Miss Perkins.

James Curran of Boston, who conducts a livery stable at York Village during the summer months, was the victim of a serious if not fatal accident on Tuesday evening. He was on the grounds where Miss Ruth St. Denis was giving the exhibition of dancing for the aid of the Village Improvement and Historical Society, when an automobile driven by Miss Elizabeth Perkins of New York, who is summering at Sewall's bridge, arrived on the grounds. Before Mr. Curran could get out of the way the machine pinned him to a tree and on being taken out he was found to be suffering intense pain and was at once removed to the York hospital. Here it was found he had been badly crushed and sustained internal injuries. This morning it was said that but little hope were entertained of his recovery.

REMOVED AN EYE.

Italian Laborer Had Been Injured by a Flying Stone.

Dr. A. J. Lance, the eye specialist of this city, was called to York this morning to remove an eye from Vincent Notti, an Italian laborer, who was being cared for at the York hospital. Notti, who was employed on the Atlantic Shore railroad, had his left eye destroyed by a piece of flying rock and it was deemed necessary to remove the eye in order to save the sight of the other one. The operation was successfully accomplished and the piece of stone that caused the trouble also located and removed.

Wife of Gov. Sulzer Says She is to Blame for the Affair--Claim Impeachment Certain

Albany, N. Y., August 12.—The lower house of the New York legislature met late tonight to vote on Majority Leader Levy's resolution to impeach Governor Sulzer on charges of wilful and corrupt conduct in office and high crimes and misdemeanors.

The Democratic organization claimed more than enough votes to adopt the resolution. Governor Sulzer's friends made no claim. The first roll call indicated the correctness of the organization's claims.

Eighty-five Democrats, nine more than the necessary majority, answered to their names. Another Democrat reached the chamber after roll call. Less than half a dozen of these were expected to vote against the measure. Republican and progressive leaders the governor's erstwhile political foes are now his sole champions, save for a corporal's guard of independent Democrats planned a savage fight on the resolution.

May Last All Night

Indications at midnight were that the session would last all night. On the eve of the Governor's probable impeachment, the story was spread broadcast throughout the capital that Mrs. Sulzer had assumed all blame for the revelations brought out by the Pravey investigating committee concerning the governor's transaction in Wall street.

Mrs. Sulzer's statement was made according to this story to Senator Palmer of Milton. She is quoted as

TO INVESTIGATE VOLUNTEER LIFE SAVING SERVICE

About $12,000 Has Been Collected and Expended Annually.

At the request of Atty General James M. Swift, the state police of Manchester have started an investigation of affairs of the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps for the state of Massachusetts. Charges against the association were made in the attorney general's office yesterday.

The organization is incorporated as a charitable corporation and as such comes under the supervision of the State Board of Charities.

The association of which William Penn Jackson of Boston is treasurer, as he is also of the New York State Association, maintains volunteer life saving crews at beaches and other shore resorts along the Massachusetts coast as well as the several inland water coasts.

As a charitable organization, supervised by the State Board of Charities, the association sends out collectors to solicit subscriptions to the funds for the annual maintenance of the several stations and although it does not appear on the reports of the State Board of Charities, as in most similar cases, the organization pays the collectors a percentage of the funds they collect. This commission is set at 40 per cent, out of which the collectors must pay their railroad and car fares and any other expenses incurred in collecting.

The collections and expenditures of the association annually amount to about $12,000, and none of the officers receive pay for their services except Treasurer Jackson. He receives 7 per cent of the total subscriptions received.

Mr. Jackson said yesterday that he had been told that an investigation was under way and that he had been warned yesterday to leave town as soon as he could.

"A man met me on the street today," said Mr. Jackson, and told me the district attorney's office, the state police, the attorney general's office, and I do not know how many more departments were to be turned loose on us for the purpose of an investigation, and he seriously advised me to get out of town as soon as possible, but I guess I will wait around."

The United States Representative Meets Gamboa Unofficially.

Washington, August 12. News from Mexico City that John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson, and Frederico Gamboa, Mexican minister of foreign relations, had established unofficial relations today by a personal meeting brought encouragement to administration officials here.

It was felt by them that he first step in the program of the American government to throw its influence in the direction of a quiet and peaceful settlement of the new revolutionary troubles had succeeded.

The incident however, it was learned from official sources tonight will not change the procedure previously outlined to Mr. Lind before he left for Washington. He will submit all his representations to Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy, who will transmit them in accordance with diplomatic proprieties, to the Mexican minister of foreign relations.

The meeting of Mr. Lind and Minister Gamboa, however was looked upon by officials here as the beginning of frank, though unofficial relations, through which the Mexican government might be informally and the more fully acquainted with the ideas of the Washington administration. It has been left entirely to Mr. Lind's discretion upon whom to call. While there is nothing in Mr. Lind's instructions which would prevent him from calling on provisional president Huerta, it is not regarded that he would do so unless the latter had indicated his desire to receive the unofficial envoy.

Japan Will Not Receive Diaz

Certain international aspects of the situation here have added interest to Mr. Lind's mission in Mexico. It became known that Japan which hitherto recognized the Huerta government had practically decided not to receive General Felix Diaz, special ambassador to express thanks for the participation by Japan in Mexico's centennial a few years ago. Like was the statement of the British government explaining that it, as well as Germany and France had recognized the Huerta government after ambassador Henry L. Wilson made a congratulatory speech to President Huerta in encouraged administration officials to believe that the foreign powers would give their moral support to the efforts of the president efforts of President Wilson through constitutional processes to influence the restoration of peace in Mexico.

The administration had decided to keep foreign governments fully informed as to various steps taken and while Mr. Lind talked with Minister Gamboa today, it is not considered likely that the note expressing the views

Crocker Land Expedition Will Keep Government Posted on Movements.

It is evident that the government wireless station on Seavey's Island will be of great importance to the authorities in connection with the movements of the Crocker-Land expedition in the Arctic regions. The expedition left New York on July 2, for Flieger Sound, north of Greenland, and has been instructed to communicate all its discoveries to Washington through the wireless station at the navy yard. This communication will be established on the arrival at latitude 78-40 north, and 78 west longitude by installing a shore station for the purpose. It is the intention to relay the service through Canadian stations at Belle Isle, Newfoundland, and Port Nelson, Hudson Bay.

There were many from this city who went to York Harbor on Tuesday evening to see Miss Ruth St. Denis in her famous dances.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION ON BASEBALL

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Charles A. Donahy, owner of the Chicago Americans, like baseball reports best when they are written in plain English, while professors at the University of Chicago deplore the possibility of the elimination of slang from the accounts of games. These unexpected attitudes were learned today in a voice being taken by a local daily to determine just how the followers of the national pastime want the games described.

"I am in favor of a clean, plain English story of a baseball game," said Donahy who has just returned from the woods of northern Wisconsin. "What readers want to know is who won the game and how it was won. When those facts are covered up with a lot of useless words the reader is apt to grow tired."

"I think it would be pretty tame to report baseball in plain ordinary English," said Prof. Nathaniel Butler.

DANIELS' NAVY POLICY

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, has returned to Washington filled with ideas of conservation and expansion, gathered during his month's inspection of the naval stations on the Pacific coast. Few of these ideas have reached a concrete stage as yet, and Mr. Daniels explained that the mass of statistics and recommendations gathered would have to be judiciously sifted out before a definite program could be formulated.

"There is one thing certain said Mr. Daniels, 'I would not divide the Atlantic fleet. This would be a complete failure from the point of naval strategy. When the Panama Canal is opened the Atlantic fleet will, however, be as much at home on the Pacific coast as it will be on the Atlantic. As soon as the canal is completed the fleet will make frequent trips through it, sojourning a short or long time, as the case may be, first on one coast and then on the other. If possible, the fleet will always be kept intact. Late in October the entire Atlantic fleet will go to the Mediterranean for a short cruise. It will return to the United States at the time for Christmas. This cruise will afford the officers and men practice in navigation and will give the enlisted men the chance to see the world, which is glowingly planned by the Navy's advertisements."

"The whole navy has set its mind to having the Atlantic fleet go through the Panama Canal in solid formation as soon as possible. This shall be done in case the fleet returns from its foreign cruise. The battleship Oregon of Spanish-American war fame, will lead the procession. It has been said that it will take skillful navigation, but I think our navigators are equal to the task. I understand from the United States naval authorities that the war from the Pacific Lake is to be turned into the canal about October 1. This, of course, means that we can not get a ship through there probably by the first of the year. If this supposition is correct the Atlantic fleet will pass through the Panama Canal either just before Christmas or just after New Year's. Estimates for more dry dock on the Pacific coast probably will be asked for in a short time."

"We need more merrymen on the Pacific and on the Gulf coasts. I found that the people in Washington, Oregon, California and in fact every state that I visited had the greatest admiration for the Marine Corps. The enlisted personnel of the corps is nearly up to the number allowed by law now, so I suppose that as soon as the canal is open there will have to be a redistribution, some going from the eastern stations to the Gulf, and some to the Pacific coast. It has been suggested that I recommend to Congress an increase in the marine corps, but on this question I am not ready at this time to commit myself."

"I examined every stream of water, ever harbor, and every island on the Pacific coast which looked as though it might eventually be needed as a naval base station or yard. Some of them in years to come, undoubtedly will be used by the navy. When making the trip from Seattle down the coast to San Francisco, I had had my eye on proposed bays, rivers and was constantly on the look for likely spots for future floating stations. Later in the year I may have some very interesting recommendations to make regarding those places."

"I saw everything the Navy owns on the Atlantic coast some time after conferring Mr. Daniels and now I feel that I am fit to go ahead, set out the mass of information which I have gathered and form some sort of definite policy. It shall be a long time before I get everything into shape, but when I do it can be easily seen that I have based my conclusions not on information gathered by others, but upon my own personal information."

Secretary Daniels has not yet decided on any recommendations of policy in regard to the navy yard at the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts. It is known that he favors in general extensive developments of all shore station facilities. Thus far, he has not indicated any sympathy with the policy of his predecessor, Mr. Meyer which was to abandon such stations.

Davis International Tennis Championship Cup Back in America, Thanks to McLoughlin

New York, August 13.—H. D. Wright, returned to America with the Davis International Tennis Championship cup which was won by the American team in London, Maurice McLoughlin, the national champion, who won the star members of the challengers, and the other three members of the victorious team took a later ship home, leaving none to the continent to rest after their exertions. The Davis cup comes back to America after ten years absence. With the revival in tennis in the United States the winning of the cup was a big event, and enthusiasts hope that America will be able to keep it for many years.

having told him this afternoon: "I am wholly at home for this whole affair."

Although the story was the property of the city tonight, apparently no one could be found who would be so bold as to contradict it. Governor Palmer, Senator Palmer, declined either to confirm or deny it to interviewers. He is reported as having told the story to a select circle of the governor's supporters.

Wife Talks to Palmer

Senator Palmer, a grand army veteran, called at the executive mansion this afternoon to consult Governor Sulzer concerning the dedication of a monument to Andersonville, Ga. Mrs. Sulzer is said to have confided her story to the senator during his call.

According to other friends to whom Mrs. Sulzer has confided, she declared she used some of the governor's campaign contributions because she felt that the household was in need of money.

It is reported that Mrs. Sulzer is preparing a detailed statement for publication tomorrow.

In this statement she is said to have itemized all of her transactions in Wall street in which any of the governor's campaign funds were involved.

Governor Sulzer is said to know nothing about his wife's dealings on the stock exchange until shortly before the Pawley committee began its investigation. When he first heard the revelations, his friends say he refused to believe them as a hoax, and branded them as an attempt to secure his resignation.

Later when it was seen that the Pawley committee was in earnest, in its investigation, Mrs. Sulzer, it is declared, told the governor of her actions and volunteered to make a public statement detailing them. This Governor Sulzer emphatically refused to permit.

When the testimony concerning the Wall street transaction was brought out by the committee in New York, Mrs. Sulzer again insisted, according to the story, that she fell off and was her husband. On the office of Judge James (Ray) Gordon of Philadelphia, who was Governor Sulzer's attorney in the Mexican Holdings breach of promise case, and Attorney Louis Marshall, Mrs. Sulzer, it is said, was persuaded to remain silent.

Judge Gordon it was learned today had been a guest at the executive mansion for several days, advising the governor and Mrs. Sulzer.

When Senator Palmer, an old time friend visited Mrs. Sulzer today to discuss over matters in which she is interested, the governor's wife is said to have broken down. In tears, she is asserted to have told Senator Palmer that her husband had known nothing of the Wall street transactions until at his door by the Pawley com-

Miner Company Makes Offer for Services of Canal Zone Sanitation Chief

Panama, Aug. 12.—A cable despatch was received yesterday by William C. Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of the Panama Canal Commission, from the Chamber of Mines, Johannesburg, South Africa, requesting his services in organizing sanitation work for the betterment of the bad health conditions among the miners at Witwatersrand. The offer is the result of a recent visit to the isthmus of Samuel Evans, a mine official of Johannesburg, who made a full investigation of the sanitary methods in operation there. Colonel Gorgas added his willingness to go to South Africa, providing his visit could be deferred until November.

HIGH SPEED AND NOISE HAVING ITS EFFECT

London, Aug. 12.—The International Medical Congress, which delegates from all parts of the world regard as the most successful and most comprehensive ever held in the history of medicine was brought to an end this afternoon with a speech by John Burns, president of the Local Government Board. His subject was the relationship of medicine to the public health.

Mr. Burns, after paying a tribute to the doctors for the vast improvement they had effected in the science of the cure and prevention of disease, emphasized his point by showing that as the result of the combined application of medical and sanitary science to the problem of healthful living there had been 772,811 fewer deaths in England and Wales in the years from 1909 to 1911 than there would have been had the death rate of two decades earlier continued.

Mr. Burns thought the ideal of the future work of physicians lies in advising the world as to the best means of preventing disease, dissuading people from habits inimical to their health and discovering early symptoms which, if neglected, would produce serious disease.

The speaker considered the prospect of gaining complete control over tuberculosis promising, and intimated that general medical research was about to receive assistance from the state on a scale not heretofore contemplated. The chief impediment in the way of the Government making this expenditure had been wastefulness, and one source of waste expenditure—armaments—stood head and shoulders above all others. If that waste could be prevented, he continued, gigantic sums would be released for reforms which are waiting to be financed.

"Leprosy," gave rise to an interesting discussion in the bacteriology section. Mr. B. H. Ross of the Indian Medical Service, said that after years of experience he had reached the belief that the disease, in the great majority of cases, was contracted through infected clothing. He emphasized the importance of segregation and of the sterilizing of all clothing worn by lepers.

"Climate and occupational influence in diseases of the ear" was the subject of a paper by Dr. Clarence J. Blake of Boston in the otology section. He mentioned as an instance that miners are especially prone to ear diseases because of the dust and detonations in a circumscribed space without the possibility of diffusion. In the same way persons engaged in trades productive of dust and noise are inclined to be affected. He thought noise was the most important and injurious by-product of industry yet it was the last to receive attention.

Arthur H. Cheate, lecturer on rural surgery at Kings College Hospital called attention to the deafness associated with telegraphing and said much would be heard on this subject in the future. Three factors he said were conducive in this form of occupational deafness—high speed and the noise of the motor.

SUMMER ESTATE
AT YORK THREATENED
BY A FIRE

A fire which started in the underbrush near the Taber estate at York Harbor, on Tuesday afternoon, for a time threatened to cause a big loss. The flames made rapid headway and fanned by a high wind blowing directly toward the big Taber cottage, there was every prospect of a bad fire. An alarm brought out a number of fire fighters and after a hard fight which lasted for some time the fire was checked before it reached any of the buildings which were kept wet down. It was suspected that the fire was set and the officials are making an investigation.

THIS IS WORTH YOUR ATTENTION.

The Y. M. C. A. is doing business at the same old stand. Many of our friends have forgotten the way to the rooms. They simply have to come down Congress street until they arrive at No. 143 where they will be welcome.

While our regular work is quiet we have been able to render service to over fifty strangers who have come to our city seeking good rooms and board. We are always glad to render such service. The only way we ask is the good will of those whom we serve.

The shower baths are very popular these days, many members enjoying this privilege.

I feel sure that many of the men and boys of the city have overlooked the fact that we have one of the finest equipped gymnasiums for its size in New England. One cannot invest their money in a better way than by joining with us at this time. The baths may be enjoyed now and the gymnasium privileges and social times all through the fall and winter. The boys have special rates which may be learned by calling at the office.

Any boy or man who will try to live up to the demands that common decency makes upon him may join this institution.

We stand for manhood at its best and we ask the public to help us to maintain this high standard.

We may be beaten at baseball but we can't be beaten in our desire to serve the men and boys of the community.

Special inducements to those who join before September first.

PROTEST

London, Aug. 12.—(Zar Ferdinand) In an address to his army states general finally that Bulgaria is not conquered and that her standards are only furled until better days. Both Austria and Russia are anxious that Bulgaria shall not be unduly weakened by her victorious enemies, and it is announced that they have reserved the right to revise the peace treaty. Germany and France are opposed to any revision and want the peace now concluded to be made final. Germany's attitude is plainly indicated by King Charles's telegram to the Kaiser: "Thanks to you, it remains a definite peace." The Viennese press denounces harshly the Kaiser's interference. Russia, on her side, finds fault with France for taking her stand with Germany against revision. The Navar Vremya says France in pursuit of child marriages, is sacrificing her alliance with Russia. The French Foreign Office, however, today published a note on the subject. It says that while it is true France believed the part of Kavala on the Aegean Sea should be given to the Greeks and Russia thought it should be handed over to the Bulgarians, neither Government attached such importance to its own view as to ask the other to sacrifice its opinion. The relations between the two allied Governments, says the note, never were so close as they are now. The dissensions among the great Powers are all to the advantage of Turkey who declares that she will not exchange Adrianople, despite statements in various quarters that the concert of Europe will make the treaty of London respected.

Austria Cannot Rattle Kaiser's Sabre.

The Vienna correspondent wires, under yesterday's date: "A dark cloud has been hanging for some time over the Triple Alliance and anxiety is shown in well informed quarters about the development of the dissensions that have arisen between Austria and Germany and to some extent Italy. The origin of these differences is characterized by an utterance of the German emperor, who is alleged to have said: 'I don't like Austria to rattle with my sword. Whether this is true or not, the fact is that the recent course of Austria's policy, particularly her campaign for a revision of the Bucharest treaty, was taken without agreement with Germany, and even with German disapproval. The Kaiser's congratulatory telegram to King Charles, his declaration of Premier Marescaux, and his making King Constantine a field marshal in the German army were visible expressions of the new direction in which German policy is going in Balkan questions. All this is causing great uneasiness in Vienna. Count Berchtold's policy finds little appreciation in Berlin, and his position has become precarious.'"

Germany's Position Clear; Pact to Stand.

The Berlin correspondent says that the telegram exchanged Saturday between Emperor William and King Charles of Roumania, felicitating each other on the signing of the Balkan peace treaty, plainly indicated Germany's position toward the Bucharest compact. There is no necessity, the correspondent adds, for Germany to participate in any effort to force an alteration of the treaty, which also is true with regard to the other European powers, and this means that any European campaign against the treaty is out of the question.

Bulgaria to Bide Time.

King Ferdinand issued a pathetic address to his army. In it he thanked his soldiers for the bravery and devotion they displayed in the war against the "treacherous allies" and declared that their efforts would have been crowned with success "had not a series of unforeseen political circumstances paralyzed our strength."

Misery Among Bulgar People.

The war ended by the signing of the treaty of Bucharest has brought much suffering and want of the people of Bulgaria. Conditions are so bad that Rev. Elmer E. Count superintendent of Methodist missions for Bulgaria has sent a cablegram from that country to America asking for help. The message follows: "There is great and appalling need among the thousands of refugees who have fled to Bulgaria to escape the ravages of the cruel war prosecuted by Greeks and Turks in Macedonia. Scores of villages and hundreds of homes have been destroyed and misery want and dire distress are to be found on all sides. Bulgaria appeals to benevolent Americans for sympathy and material aid."

TO CREATE A MEMORIAL TO FRANKLIN PIERCE

Concord, Aug. 12.—In connection with the erection of a statue to President Franklin Pierce in the state house yard it is proposed to make a collection of Pierce relics, the same to be placed in an alcove of the New Hampshire Historical building.

The statue commission composed of Franklin Pierce Carpenter of Manchester, Judge Edgar Mitchell of Littleton, the Hon. Clarence E. Carr of Andover, the Hon. William E. Chandler and David E. Murphy of Concord—three of whose members visited Hillsborough Saturday, with Gay, Samuel D. Felker, Councilor Wm. H. Sawyer and Otis G. Hammond of the Historical society, to inspect the portraits and memorabilia of the former president in the possession of Col. Rick D. Pierce, voted that Col. Rick D. Pierce and his family be conferred with on the subject of collecting memorabilia of President Pierce consisting of the late president's awards medals, personal ornaments, apparel, portraits and correspondence, and likewise to confer with Miss Mabel of Concord and others with reference to the same subject, with a view to securing for such memorabilia a safe and appropriate setting in an alcove or corner, to be known as the Franklin Pierce alcove, to be established in the building of the New Hampshire Historical society.

It is understood that the project of erecting an equestrian statue of President Pierce has been abandoned by reason of the rather narrow confines of the yard and that the statue when it is finally unveiled will occupy the site of the present fountain.

The Decline of Drink.

A great many persons in this country have been remarking the change in drinking customs which has become so noticeable in the past few years. There was a time when business men drank during business hours. That time has passed. Any man who drips and does business at the same time is likely to be looked upon with distrust by those whom he meets in the course of his work. The changed habits have been particularly noticed among traveling men. These days, the exactions of their work compel them to keep almost in training, in order to be able to compete as they must with others in the same line. Two reasons have been offered for this change in the habits of Americans. One is the increased speed of American life and the other is the effect of the climate in making the nervous system sensitive to stimulants. However, the same thing has evidently been happening in England, to judge from some of the things which have been brought out at the great congress of physicians and surgeons which is in progress in London. The Britisher does not drink in the way he used. Yet the pace at which the business of England moves does not approach that of American business and the British climate is often thought to demand stimulation rather than to forbid it. Possibly the reasons which have been offered for the decline of drinking in this country may not be the real reasons. It may be that the scientific arguments against excessive use of liquor have had their effect upon both nations.—Boston Advertiser.

Methods to Be Investigated.

Word comes from Massachusetts that the Attorney General has started an investigation of the methods pursued by the Massachusetts volunteer life saving service, which has maintained men in the guise of life savers at New England sea shore resorts for a number of years. The expense of the same was borne by public subscription and it is said that about $12,000 was annually collected and spent among the few engaged in this work. Some time ago this paper had occasion to refer to people engaged in this scheme of working the public for an easy living and it is pleasing news that the authorities of Massachusetts have taken the matter in hand. A few years ago several of these "life savers" located at York Beach for a season and one season was all that was desired of their company. One of the stunts that was pulled off was the fake rescue of a woman who pretended that she was being drowned, which was heralded broadcast by the man in charge of the outfit. It was afterwards learned that whole affair was a cleverly concocted plan, and that woman who played her part in the game was an expert swimmer and as much at home in the water as on the land. Within a comparatively short time men have been in this city soliciting funds for this very same purpose and well they might, as they were allowed forty per cent. of the sum collected by the head of the association.

A Comparison.

When a newspaper gives you a lot of free advertising in order to boom some concert or church entertainment which you are interested in, keep track of the number of lines that are printed week by week, and multiply that number by the regular advertising rates of the paper. Compare the results with the actual money value of any favor that you can get from any other business concern. Then take into consideration the fact that advertising and circulation are the only two things that a newspaper has to sell, and in these days of higher prices, how much do you think they ought to give away for nothing?

Polluted Water in New Hampshire.

A law passed at the recent session of the legislature provides that no sewage or waste shall be discharged into any lake, pond or river "not hitherto polluted," without the approval of the state board of health. It would require quite a force of detectives to discover any lakes, ponds or rivers in New Hampshire not "hitherto polluted." But the law looks well on paper.—Somersworth Free Press.

The Result of Carelessness and Sacrifice.

Figures in the abstract don't have much meaning; hence the government announcement that in twenty-four years 188,037 persons have been killed and 1,395,618 persons injured on the railroads of the United States really conveys to us only a vague impression of carelessness and sacrifice.

The Dove of Peace.

After all the unpleasant notoriety that the Green Acre Fellowship has attained of late, it would seem as though it were about time for the dove of peace to descend in that vicinity.

THE CRY OF THE DREAMER.

I am tired of planning and toiling
In the crowded haunts of men;
Heart-weary of building and spoiling,
And spoiling and building again,
And I long for the dear old river
Where I dreamed my life away;
And a toller dies in a day.

I can find no pride, but pity,
For the burdens the rich endure;
There is nothing sweet in the city
That the patient lives of the poor.
Oh, the little hands are stiff,
And the child mind choked with weeds!

A daughter's heart grows wilful,
And the father's heart that bleeds,
No, Not from the street's rude bustle,
From the trophies of mart and stage
I would fly to the wood's low rustle,
And the meadow's lullaby page.
Let me dream as of old by the river,
And be loved for the dream always;
For the dreamer lives forever,
And the toller dies in a day.

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

the Piscataqua river, just above the property of the present Green Acre farm. On this, it is proposed to establish the second colony. The change will probably take place when Dr. Moore's house of bungalow camp, the anti headquarters, terminates in the not distant future.

There are some buildings on the Moore tract and it is planned to erect others. Dr. Moore's followers will appeal to all those to have come to Green Acre in other years for support, and propose to build up a colony which they say will be an exact duplicate of Green Acre as it was when Miss Farmer was at its head. They intend to hold conferences, arrange lectures, and in general to carry out the ideals of non-sectarian universal peace and freedom of thought and discussion to which Miss Farmer gave herself during her years of health.

No spirit of compromise was evident among the defeated anti yesterday. They were firm in their assertion that they would make a fight on the question of the legality of the meeting in the course of Maine, and that they would also seek the removal of George T. Hammond, Miss Farmer's guardian in the state of Maine.

May Appeal to Wilson

The feeling of the anti was especially bitter as regards the attitude of Mr. Kahn, a member of the Persian embassy at Washington, in expounding the cause of the Bahists at yesterday's meeting. They assert as a diplomat he should not have participated and voted. One of the leaders of the anti said that the attention of the Shah of Persia, President Wilson, and Secretary of State Bryan would be called by formal letters to the part the Persian diplomat played in the controversy.

Word was conveyed to Miss Farmer at the anti in this city as to the events which had transpired at Green Acre. She expressed her disappointment at the apparent disruption of the movement, but expressed the belief that all would be well in the end. A feature of the proceedings of yesterday was a lecture delivered by Boston Russell, a former editor and lecturer of Bombay, India, who has been in Boston several months delivering lectures.

The lecture was attended only by anti-Bahists, and was held under the great "Hudson" plan, which Miss Farmer has made famous. He emphasized the danger of what he termed Neo-Mohammedanism, and expressed his inability to see what American women, educated and free as they are could find in a religion which seemed to him to mean only the degradation of womanhood.

"Such a spectacle," he concluded "as I witnessed Monday at your election quarrel could never have taken place in India, a place which you, of this country regard as uncivilized."

At Green Acre last and the cottages occupied by the victorious Bahist following there was evident a spirit of great satisfaction. All alike expressed the belief that the struggle was now over, and that the dove of peace would soon settle down over the colony.

The Bahist, like their rivals said that they felt themselves pledged to carry out the ideas of Miss Farmer. They say that the conferences will be resumed and the lecture program will be as imposing as in former years. The Bahist faction scents the idea of action in the courts and say that they believe the anti will return to the fold and that in the end all will be peace. They maintain that there is nothing in the movement of the Bahist to prevent absolute unity. The Bahist program looks to a plan by which Miss Farmer may be brought back to her old home in India, to be accomplished through the aid of her two guardians. Once again in her former home the Bahist hope to devise some plan by which the Green Acre property may be made self supporting and by which sufficient funds may be secured to assure Miss Farmer an adequate income for life.

No question of future building at Green Acre will be deferred for the present. One Bahist was so optimistic that he predicted that next year would see the Bahist and the anti-Bahist in

They called themselves "law abiding suffragettes," and they paraded in London without trying to smash windows, set off bombs or burn down empty houses. The sympathy of the crowd was with the women, for the London populace is heartily tired of the recent outrages of the militants. These law abiders hope to head a movement which will eventually drive the militants out and at the same time gain the vote for women.

WILL BURN HOMES.

More Trouble at Salisbury Beach Over Land Grab.

The summer residents of Salisbury Beach are aroused by what they term the outrageous home grabbing scheme of the Salisbury Beach Association. They have banded together, and rather than let their property revert to the association are planning to tear down over 500 cottages, which they will pile up on the beach in a huge bonfire.

Many of the summer people, led by James Martin of Lawrence, are contemplating a petition which they say will be sent to Dist. Atty. Atwell in an endeavor to protect them and their homes.

The war between the summer residents is a result of the Supreme Court decision on June 20, which was in the effect that the legislative act making the beach a state reservation was unconstitutional, and the property then reverted to the owners, the Salisbury Beach Association.

CURRENT OPINION

THE CHURCH AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

Ministers, in their visits to their parishioners, are able to observe in many instances conditions of health and surroundings which, through timely and appropriate advice, can be eliminated. The position of the church, furthermore, in participating in community efforts for the improvement of the public health must be very large. Education is one of the most important means for the eradication of our common communicable diseases. The various organizations connected with the church, women's clubs, men's clubs and children's societies can be used much more than they usually are for this campaign.

As regards marriage and candidates for marriage, a very distinct movement is on foot for requiring that such candidates present certificates of good health before the marriage ceremony is performed. Just how far and how rapidly this movement will progress is at present not known, but ministers of large reputation have taken the matter up with great earnestness. It is thus apparent that ministers by their own efforts and by utilizing their various church organizations can bolster up the health administration in any community by endeavoring to secure competent health officials and by upholding them in their efforts. Church activities will be directed in the first instance to improving the health conditions among parishioners of the individual church, but hardly less important will be the great general cleaning up of disease-producing agencies for which a combination of all factors interested for civic improvement must be called into action.—Dr. Mark W. Richardson, Secretary of the State Board of Health.

GALLINGER REPLIES.

To Speech of Hollis on the Tariff.

At the close of Senator Hollis' tariff speech on Monday, Senator Gallinger addressed the senate briefly, saying: "Mr. President I have listened with interest and surprise to my Democratic colleague, who gravely tells the senate that he is commissioned to speak for New England on the question of tariff duties."

"I did not interrupt my colleague to call his attention to various statements he made to which I take open and unqualified exception, and which at the proper time will be presented to the senate. So far as New Hampshire is concerned, the tariff question has seldom been made a square issue in our politics, but it is safe to say that in view of my colleague's declarations today it will not be overlooked in the future, the result of which, will in my opinion amply demonstrate that New Hampshire repudiates my colleague's free trade views, and his astounding attack upon the cotton manufacturing industry of New England."

"It will be found when the contest comes, that New Hampshire is not in favor of legislation for foreign nations as against our own interests, but stands firmly and unflinchingly for the well established Republican doctrine of ample protection to the products of American farms, American mills and American labor.

MACADAM ROADS

"Waterbound" macadam roads, which for practically a century have been adequate for the traffic, have now, under the new conditions, become obsolete, and their further construction means a serious waste of public funds," is the opinion of former president, Lewis R. Spaul, of the American Automobile Association.

Macadam may answer for side roads and cross roads where there is little travel to wear the surface into dust and few fast moving vehicles to throw the dust into the air to be blown away. But for main roads, anywhere and everywhere, a method of construction must be put in operation which will produce durable roads.

Wherever it can be used concrete makes a most excellent road, or a road base, for some other kind of surface. The state of California has adopted concrete construction for practically its entire system of state high ways after a most thorough investigation. Wayne county, Michigan, has been building concrete roads for the past five years, and they have given most excellent satisfaction.

Before the Wayne county authorities had learned by experience how to build concrete roads with expansion joints to prevent the concrete from cracking in cold weather, and buckling in the hot sun several miles of road were built which broke into frequent cracks. To repair these cracked sections of road they poured hot bituminous material into the cracks and covered them with sand. This was worn to the level of the concrete and the whole formed a most delightfully smooth road to travel over, and one which looks as if it would stand for a generation at least.

In some sections of the country the concrete is being used as a base, and two or three inches of broken stone mixed with bituminous materials, put on for service. If properly built this kind of road should be very durable, and should justify the additional expense. The concrete will furnish the strength required to hold up the loads which are constantly growing heavier, while the bituminous surface will prevent the erosion of dust, making the road pleasant to travel over.

BREEZES FROM THE NEIGHBORING RESORTS

New Castle-by-the-Sea.

On last Saturday afternoon the annual swimming carnival took place at the swimming pool. The events began at 4 p. m., but long before that time the long veranda in front of the bath house and the pine bank in the rear were crowded with guests anxiously waiting for the program to start.

The first event was a men's 40-yard sprint. This event was very closely contested but was finally won by M. Larn, who by a final effort jumped away from L. Lar and Mr. Abbott, who finished in that order. The second event was a ladies' 40-yard sprint. This was not so closely contested, the long over-arm side stroke bringing Miss Godfrey in a winner by five yards with Miss Sanders and Miss Berliner finishing second and third.

The third event was a men's 40-yard back stroke. This event also was closely contested, finishing with Mr. Abbott first, Mr. Babb second and Mr. M. Larn third.

The fourth event, which proved to be more on a burlesque basis, was a ladies' tub race. Several attempts were made before the contestants could balance themselves in their tubs but finally they started paddling and the race was on. This race was very close but again Miss Godfrey was declared a winner, closely pursued by Miss Sanders and Miss Berliner.

The fifth event was a Monte Cristo sack dive by the swimming instructor, Henry V. O'Day. This proved a surprise to everybody and Mr. O'Day was tied securely in a large sack; he was cast in the water. Over two minutes passed when finally, with a large splash he reappeared, free from the sack. A loud applause rang out when it was announced that Mr. O'Day had broken his former record by getting free of the sack in two minutes and thirty-five seconds.

The ladies' canoe race without paddles proved very interesting, but this time Miss Sanders won out, defeating Miss Godfrey by a scant yard, and Miss Berliner again finishing third.

The men's tub race was so close that the judges decided it a tie between Mr. M. Larn and Mr. Babb, and Mr. Ellis third.

The last event for ladies was a canoe race with paddles. This was also very close, and it was at first thought a dead heat, but finally the judges again decided in favor of Miss Godfrey with Miss Sanders second and Miss Berliner a close third.

The men's canoe race, which was the last event for competition, was again very close. For over seventy-five yards Mr. Abbott and Mr. Babb raced neck and neck, but with a final spurt Mr. Abbott sent his canoe over the line a winner, closely followed by Mr. Babb and Mr. Ellis.

The program closed with a very interesting exhibition of fancy swimming by the instructor. After each stroke, the guests showed their appreciation by hearty applause. Over thirty different novelties were shown, each proving very popular, especially the walk stroke and the porpoise play. After the exhibition had ended the guests returned to the hotel, many of them expressing that it was the most enjoyable afternoon they had spent during the season.

When the score of points was added Mr. Abbott was declared a winner with a total of 11, for which he received a beautiful silver cup. Mr. M. Larn and Mr. Babb were tied for second with a total of 10. Mr. L. Larn fourth with 3 points and Mr. Ellis fifth with 2 points.

The ladies' cup was won by Miss Godfrey with a score of 18 points. Miss Sanders was second with 14 points and Miss Berliner third with three.

The following was the schedule in full of the exhibition of fancy swimming: Under water swimming, side stroke, breast stroke; swimming with hands and feet tied, swimming with one arm and one leg, crawl stroke, trudgen stroke, over-arm side stroke, breast stroke, crawl on back, double over-arm back stroke, double under-arm back stroke, sculling on chest head foremost, sculling on chest feet foremost, sculling on back head foremost, sculling on back feet foremost, swimming sideways, front somersaults, back somersaults, top spinning, log roll, waltzing, porpoise play, steamboat.

GERMAN COMMENT ON BERMUDA.

In this connection the attitude of Germany toward the decision of the British Government to station several naval cruisers of Bermuda is interesting. Captain Persius, the naval expert of the Tageblatt, sees in it the first breach in Lord Fisher's policy of concentrating every available ship of the British navy in home waters and an indication of the waning of the tense Anglo-German rivalry which

SULZER IMPEACHED VOTE 79 TO 46

Albany, N. Y., August 12.—With three votes more than the required majority, Governor William Sulzer early today was impeached by the Assembly for alleged high crimes and misdemeanors in connection with the campaign fund.

After an all-night session spent by the majority in filibustering until Tammany absentees could arrive, the vote was taken at 5.16 a. m., resulting 79 for impeachment to 45 against.

The first impeachment of a Governor of New York state came close on the heels of the most sensational feature in the Sulzer-Murphy war, when Mrs. Sulzer told certain senators she was responsible for the Sulzer stock market deals and that the Governor knew nothing about it. She sought to shoulder all blame.

has kept the two nations on the verge of war for a decade. From this point of view Captain Persius finds the action of the British Admiralty of more importance to Germany than to the United States. He says Germany also may take similar steps of deconcentration. He believes that in general the decision was dictated more by the desire to show the British flag than by actual necessity. The Tageliche Rundschau publishes a story referring to the possibility of Germany modifying its naval program in view of the acceleration of construction of three battleships of the British navy, recently announced by Winston Spencer Churchill. The German Admiralty, however, says there is no question of such action.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell, former premier of the Canadian Parliament and for 46 consecutive years a member of the Canadian Parliament, speaking of the new British naval policy at Bermuda, said: "I do not think the United States need be unduly alarmed over England's plan to establish a naval base at Bermuda. The island is seven hundred miles from the entrance to the Panama Canal, and the plan is merely in line with Winston Churchill's announced policy of putting the British empire in a position to resist any enemy. The separation of the West India fleet from the home squadron, making it a distinct division of the navy, is merely another step in the same direction. England is preparing herself against the unstable situation in Europe and hasn't the least thought in the world of making any movement hostile or even unfriendly to the United States."

Always the Same.

It was little Hester's first year in school. The spelling lesson was being reviewed, and the teacher asked Hester how she would spell the word "bird"? "Just the same today as we did yesterday," she promptly answered.

Kind That Glows.

It is worth recalling just now that there is etiquette to be observed even in being warm. In an old volume for the instruction of youth a young lady declares herself to be "all of amuck of sweat," and is at once severely rebuked by her governess with "blush, miss! Horrors sweat, men perspire, but ladies only glow."

ATTITUDE OF ADMINISTRATION TO MEXICO TO BE DEFINED

Duplicate Notes to Be Given Foreign Powers at Same Time as Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 13. Charge O'Shaughnessy called the state department today that the situation in Mexico City was peaceful and quiet. His message was awaiting to administration officials.

The presentation of a note representing the views of President Wilson to the state department today that the situation in Mexico City was peaceful and quiet. His message was awaiting to administration officials.

Administration officials who are helping the European countries will have their moral support to the efforts to adjust the Mexican situation peacefully. The statement of the British Government that the recognition of Huerta had been only a recognition of a provisional President, pending an election, was done on the theory that it was "likely to assist in the restoration of order."

The added comment from the British government that France and Germany had recognized President Huerta, for the American Ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, had made a congratulatory visit to a reception given by President Huerta to the diplomatic corps, was received as further strengthening the view of President Wilson that the American Ambassador should have been a personal friend of the President.

was generally construed as showing a desire on the part of Japan to avoid anything open to the construction of being unfriendly to the United States. It was recalled that when some significance was recently given to the arrival of a new Japanese Minister at Mexico City, protest, disclaimer was made by the Japanese and others that any political importance attached to the event, or that the new Minister had made any expressions on the identity of interests between Japan and Mexico.

The present move is thought to be along the same lines, in keeping Japan quite apart from any apparent participation in pending political or diplomatic questions relating to Mexico.

BLOW TO FELIX DIAZ

Japan Not to Receive General as Special Mexican Envoy, but Only as a Private Person.

Tokyo, Japan, Aug. 12. The Japanese Government indicated today to the Mexican Government that it would not receive Gen. Felix Diaz as special envoy to Japan to express the thanks of Mexico for Japanese participation in the Mexican Revolution. The Government, it was further indicated, would receive Gen. Diaz as a private individual.

Gen. Felix Diaz was appointed special envoy to Japan on July 17 and left Mexico City two days later. He intended to proceed to Japan by way of Los Angeles and Vancouver. In Los Angeles he was met by a hostile demonstration from opponents of the present provisional government of Mexico and was kept there for several days in consequence of the receipt of dispatches from Mexico City which, it was alleged, recalled him. It was announced on Aug. 2 at the Japanese Legation in Mexico City that the Emperor of Japan would be absent from the Imperial Palace for several weeks. Diaz arrived in San Francisco Aug. 4, and later left for Seattle and Vancouver, whence he is to sail for Japan.

NOT TO CHANGE HIS PLANS

Gen. Felix Diaz Says That He Will Go to Japan, Regardless of the Government's Attitude. Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 12. After reading the dispatch from Tokyo, Gen. Felix Diaz today said he would go to Japan anyhow, regardless of the Japanese Government's attitude toward his mission, stating that he would not be received there officially.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD ANNUAL OUTING

The annual outing of Ogdood Lodge, No. 48, I. O. O. F., was held on Tuesday at Randa's Grove in Ilye, and it was an event with affluence of the organization a great success. There was a large attendance of Odd Fellows and their families and the committee in charge had everything arranged for their comfort and entertainment.

The trip was made in special electric cars and arriving at the grove there was a lunch ready, proceeding the shore dinner which was served later.

During the afternoon there were sports of various kinds and a baseball game, and all of these events created an air of interest.

The handling committee of arrangements were Ernest A. Tucker, Charles H. Kober, John C. Shaw, George E. Cox, Harry W. Vennard, Roy H. Blaney, R. W. Taylor, Frank Willard, O. D. Ham and Henry W. Dannel.

SAYS TANGO RUINS THE FEET

"The tango, turkey trot, aeroplane slide and other modern dances are the cause of two-thirds of all the ailments of the feet."

This statement was made on Friday by Ernest Groff of New York, who was elected secretary of the National Association of Chiropodists, now holding its annual convention at the Marlborough hotel. And that isn't all. The other chiropodists assembled from all parts of the country some 500 of them, agree with Mr. Groff. This is what Mr. Groff has to say:

"Modern dances are ruining people's feet. The result of such unnatural dances as the tango and turkey trot is to break down the transverse arch of the foot, which is above the metatarsal bones. The foot, the weight of the body being thrown on this arch, becomes bowed, and pains inevitably follow."

"I believe that fully two-thirds of all the trouble people have with their feet is caused by the unnatural dancing now in vogue."

Putting their theory into practice the chiropodists will indulge in the more simplified diversion of "barefooting" tonight when they take a trip to Coney Island. The dance will follow the banquet there.

But there is another reason why you should take care of your feet. Miss Clara Houston of Chicago, who founded the new "science" of "pedicure" says she can tell all about you by merely gazing at your feet. Experts say that Miss Houston has the most beautiful feet in the world.

Miss Houston outlined her idea after this fashion:

"I can tell more about a person by looking at the feet than by gazing upon the face. The feet tell the story."

"For instance, should a person's second toe be longer than his first one, it is a sign that he is dishonest. A square foot indicates excitability, and impetuosity. Then, again, should she have a long narrow foot, I would know that he was 'capricious' and more or less irresponsible."

Then Miss Houston told how the new "science" could aid women in picking husbands.

"Never marry a man with a pretty foot," she said. "They make very poor husbands. Take a man with an ugly foot and you will be more satisfied."

ON TRIAL FOR ACCIDENT TO DESTROYER.

Lieutenant Commander William L. Littlefield commanding the destroyer Hentley which was badly damaged during the recent war maneuvers, by striking bottom off the south shore of Fishing Island was placed on trial at Newport yesterday before a Board of Inquiry, consisting of Captain George W. Kibbe, commanding the battleship Idaho; Commander John K. Robinson, commanding the Dixie; and Commander R. B. Herer, executive officer of the Minnesota. During the war practice last week the Hentley proceeded too close to shore off Point Wilderness, and bent her prowler blades. The defense is that Lieutenant Commander Littlefield could not form accurate judgment on his distance from shore because of the glare of searchlights.

MAINE WILL OPPOSE THE ABANDONMENT OF TOGUS SOLDIERS' HOME

If the agitation begun at the last session of Congress is made a law the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers at Togus, near Augusta, Me., will go out of existence. There are nearly 3000 veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars cared for at the Togus home, the only national soldiers' home in New England.

Congressman Fitzgerald of New York is leading the movement in Congress for the discontinuation of this home on the grounds that hundreds of thousands of dollars are annually wasted, since the men in Togus could be transferred to the Central Home in Dayton, O., or at any other of the national homes. This other institution is located in Milwaukee, Hampton, Va., Leavenworth, Kan., Santa Monica, Cal., Marlow, Ind., Danville, Ill., Johnson City, Tenn., and Hot Springs, S. D., this latter a sanitarium home where only very decrepit or diseased veterans are admitted.

During the debate in Congress it was stated that it cost the government an average of $250 per day to support the veterans in the home.

When the governing of the national home at Santa Monica was practically ended last year because he ill treated the veterans in his charge, the movement of Congressman Fitzgerald to eliminate at least three of the homes has received a fresh impetus and there are fears in Augusta that the Togus Home will be vacated. Fitzgerald believes that the homes in Maine, Indiana and Tennessee could be given up and the vast properties sold by the government with a saving of a million dollars a year.

Maine Opposes Plan

Augusta and Gardiner, the two cities of Central Maine profit very largely now from the national home, not only through receiving patronage from the vast commissary department of the institution, but because hundreds of the veterans visit their cities at pension time, every three months, and in addition to spending a good sum in the city shops, it is said that the home of Augusta early more than $500,000 in savings deposits, the money belonging to home members. These accounts are very inactive, and form one of the most desirable assets of the Augusta banks, according to statements made a week ago, when the fear that the home might be abandoned became more general.

Another argument against the vacating of the Togus institution is made by the Maine people, namely, that veterans compelled to be transferred to the home in Dayton, O., would suffer great hardships because they could not visit their home relatives as often as they do now. All of the veterans in the Eastern Branch as the home in Maine is called, are New England men and a great majority have relatives and friends living in New England whom they frequently visit. Hundreds of members leave the home every three months when pension checks are received, going out on passes and furloughs and visiting their folks.

Very few travel farther than Boston while hundreds have their destination in Maine, New Hampshire, and throughout Massachusetts.

Separation from Friends

It is argued by friends of the institution in Maine that if New England is to have no national home, the veterans who are transferred to the middle west will rarely if ever make the long trip to New England points on their periodical visiting diversions.

The Civil War veterans are all old men now; there are few if any that are under 60 years old, the great majority of them are between 72 and 78 and there are many more who are between 80 and 90.

The percentage of the Spanish-American war veterans in Maine is very small; there are but a handful in the home, for under the rules these veterans are not admitted unless physically unable to earn a livelihood in the outside world.

In the case of Civil war veterans, however, they are admitted simply upon making a request for admittance.

Among the arguments advanced by the members of Congress who have been active in the movement to reduce the number of soldiers' homes, the chiefest is that the management of the separate homes is too costly, that money is wasted by having so many homes. No element of actual graft has ever been made against a home, except in the case of the Pacific branch at Santa Monica. This home was thoroughly investigated last year and just before the findings of the governor of the home resigned. The findings condemned the management severely.

No Charges Made

No such charges have ever been hinted at against the home in Maine, but it is said that the management of the home is at least lax.

Permanent improvements are constantly in progress.

Recently a sun dial was erected in the rear of the dining hall kitchen.

and it cost $500 it is said.

A new flag pole was erected and it is said to have cost 1000 dollars. A new flag pole was erected and it is said to have cost 1000 dollars.

When it is certain that all homes but one or two will be abandoned within 10 years, because of the rapid increase in the ranks of the home members, those who are criticizing the National Soldiers' Home system assert that such expenditures for "improvements" are wasteful and indicate that each home is in a feverish rush to spend its annual appropriation right up to the last farthing, so that there will be no balance on hand for the following year when the new appropriation is asked from Congress.

One instance in the Maine home (that is somewhat criticized, is that a new cemetery was laid out, about a mile from the old one, and after great sums had been spent in laying out the grounds and building roads, the cemetery was suddenly abandoned after only a comparatively few bodies had been buried there. It was discovered after all the work had been done, that the cemetery was in a section of swampy ground. No more burials are permitted there and an addition is now being built to the old cemetery situated on the top of a hill.

Established in 1866

The home in Maine was established by act of Congress, approved March 21, 1866, on what was then known as the Togus Springs estate. It is located five miles to the eastward of Augusta and Gardiner. The first member was admitted October 6, 1866. The home reservation covers an area of nearly 2000 acres and cost nearly $800,000. In area it is the largest home in the country, but has not cost nearly as much as the other homes; the Dayton property, for instance, of only 575 acres cost close to $2,000,000; the home in Marlow, Ind., of only 238 acres cost close to $7,000,000.

The home at Togus was the first national soldiers' home established in this or any other country. The home in Milwaukee followed during 1867 and the home in Johnson City, Tenn., was opened as recently as 1893. This home is not popular with veterans because of its lonely environment and isolated location. It has about 1500 members and cost $2,000,000 in purchase and equip. This is one of the homes that the leaders of the movement for concentration of homes believe is a sheer waste of money.

Major James W. Wadsworth of Washington is president of the board of managers that supervises all of the national homes, and General Joseph S. Smith, who lives in New York, is "local" manager of the home at Togus. The immediate management of the big institution, however, rests with Colonel John T. Richards, who has the title of governor, and who has held the position about six years. Prior to that time he was employed in a paper mill in Gardiner and was related by marriage, in a roundabout way, to Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

Nearly all of the chief officials of the home at Togus are former Boston men, among them Major A. L. Smith, treasurer; Major B. D. Bidson, surgeon; Captain George A. Mitchell, quartermaster, and Major Edwin R. Cummings adjutant and inspector.

BOYS BAIL BOAT FOR FIVE HOURS

Caught in Squall off Cape Ann, They Are Sought All Night By Life Savers.

Gloucester August 11.—Martin Welsh 14 years old, and Harold McCann of the same age, who had been believed lost in the squall which swept the waters about Gloucester last evening and for whom the Holliver's Neck life saving crew had searched all night, returned to the homes of their relatives at Long Beach today. They had a thrilling experience in the squall, but had made land in safety.

The boys were fishing between Long Beach and Milk Island when the squall struck their row boat. In a few minutes the boat was filled with water from the rushing seas and their situation was critical. Welsh, however, had been at sea with Captain Martin L. Welsh, his father, and he retained his presence of mind.

From 1 o'clock when the squall struck them, until 5:30 in the evening the boys kept the boat afloat and then ran it up on the beach at Thatcher's Island, which point they made their object when they saw that the storm would not permit of their making the mainland.

The boys were given shelter for the night by Capt. Cook the light keeper, and this morning they rowed back to Long Beach.

GREEN TURTLES IN MEXICO.

The green turtles is found most extensively all along the coast of Magdalena Bay Lower California. The natives in a great many localities subsist almost entirely on its meat. At the place named a firm once bought these turtles for 50 cents, and sold them in the markets of San Francisco for $5 but it is doubtful if they could be obtained at such prices now. At Magdalena a company has a concession to fish (turtle) in that locality being managed by Japanese and it is supposed owned by Japanese also. This concession would, of course, interfere with others who desire to fish turtle there.

On the Gulf of California turtles are also found to some extent, as well as at San Lucas a point between Santa Rosalia and Mulege Lower California. It is said these turtles weigh 150 pounds.—Daily Consular Reports.

JAPAN FEARS LOSS OF TORPEDO SECRET.

According to the London correspondent, Japan is afraid that one of her most important naval secrets will fall into the hands of a rival Power through the loss of a torpedo from the new battleship Kongo on her recent trial trip off the Irish coast. The Japanese Government has offered a reward of $1000 for the recovery of the torpedo. This is five times the amount usually offered by the British Government in similar circumstances. The explanation according to the Pall Mall Gazette, is that the torpedoes of the Kongo are unique in construction and that they embody important secrets of construction. This newspaper says the torpedo has a much longer range and is more deadly than the newest style of British torpedo. It is said to be propelled by engines worked by heated air generated by a spirit, the composition of which is the discovery of Japanese scientists and unknown to the outside world. The Kongo is believed to be the only battleship in the world carrying such a projectile. A big fishing fleet is searching Belfast Lough for the torpedo in the hope of earning the unusually large reward.

A VOICE FOR THE DOG

Chicago Inter-Ocean

A mad dog does not rush!
A mad dog does not attack!
A mad dog does not froth at the mouth.

A mad dog does not fight back even when cornered.

The symptoms usually described as those of rabies are only those of a simple form of epilepsy or nervous disorder and they are not contagious.

Hydrophobia is not caused by heat; epilepsy is. Hydrophobia is only communicable by a bite; epilepsy is not communicable at all. Dogs suffering from hydrophobia do not froth at the mouth; epileptics do.

The same author, I refer to Dr. Wesley Mills, says: Discrimination lies between the disease and epilepsy or fits of various kinds arising from the heat of the sun as dogs run the streets. Again he says: "Fear of water is a pure hypothesis as far as a dog is concerned."

Let a poor little house dog, unaccustomed to roughing it for himself become nervously excited by the din in the street, or overheated on a hot summer day, and some fool raises the cry of mad dog and shies a brick. The dog runs and that is enough. Men are but savages under restraint and anything that runs must necessarily be guilty, and send a howling mob in pursuit and the dog is lucky indeed that escapes.

Every large city has a dog pound; hundreds of men are employed as dog catchers. They are frequently bitten. Did any one of them ever have hydrophobia?

Hundreds of men in this country keep dog kennels and raise dogs for sale other hundreds make a business of training dogs for field trials, hunting and performing. They are frequently bitten. Did any one of them ever have hydrophobia?

Preparation for Knowledge.

No man can learn what he has not preparation for learning, however near to his eyes in the subject. A chemist may tell his most precious secrets to a carpenter, and he shall be never the wiser—the secrets he would not see things that stare us in the face until the hour arrives when the mind is ripened; then we behold them, and the time when we saw them not is like a dream.—Emerson.
